ACCSCIENT subsidiary IntraSystems Acquires RTM Communications to Strengthen Managed Services Offerings and Expand Geographic Reach

BRAINTREE, MA – IntraSystems has announced the acquisition of RTM Communications, headquartered in Bedford, NH, USA. This change is effective immediately. The acquisition will expand IntraSystems' geographic reach in the Northeast as well as increase its combined company's technical resources – particularly in the areas of managed services and cybersecurity.

Founded in 1999 by Ray Benoit, RTM Communications has a strong reputation in the region and is a leading provider of IT networking and integration services to small and medium-sized companies. RTM has amassed an impressive list of loyal and long-standing clients through the years. RTM has recently shifted toward providing managed services, including outsourced CIO services to many organizations.

"I have known RTM Communications and its leadership team for many years and am excited about what we can now provide to our clients as a combined company," said Paul E. Kunze, Chief Executive Officer at IntraSystems. "We share the same vision of honoring key corporate tenets of integrity, diversity, and excellence. Our goal will remain the same in the delivery of customer satisfaction through technical competence, prominent partnerships, and the professional integrity of all employees," continued Paul Kunze.

"Being a part of a larger family of companies will allow RTM to deliver increased capabilities and value to our growing client base as well as provide our team members with increased opportunities for professional development," stated Sean Powers, Managing Director at RTM Communications.

"The addition of RTM Communications to the IntraSystems and ACCSCIENT family strengthens our digital transformation capabilities and our leadership," said Sravan Vellanki, Chairman at ACCSCIENT.
